Middle School Narrative Writing Rubric

Element	Needs Improvement 1	Fair 2	Strong 3	Excellent 4
Orients and Engages the Reader	Does not engage or orient the reader. The situation is unclear, the narrator is not introduced, and the characters are poorly developed.	Attempts to engage the reader by establishing a situation. Introduces the narrator and develops at least one character.	Engages and orients the reader by establishing a situation, introducing the narrator, and developing characters.	Immediately engages and orients the reader by establishing a clear situation, introducing the narrator, and developing interesting characters
Narrative Techniques	Little to no attempt to use dialogue, description, and pacing. Experiences and events are underdeveloped throughout.	Attempts to use dialogue, description, and pacing but experiences and events are underdeveloped.	Uses dialogue, description, and pacing to develop experiences, events, and characters.	Effectively uses dialogue, description, and pacing to develop experiences, events, and characters.
Sequence of Events	Unclear sequence of events. The plot is hard to follow throughout.	Attempts to sequence events. The plot is hard to follow in places.	Clear sequence of events that unfold naturally.	Clear purposeful sequence of events that unfold naturally.
Conclusion	Abrupt ending. No concluding statement	Ends with a concluding statement that does not clearly follow from the narrative.	Ends with a concluding statement that follows from the narrative.	Effectively ends with a strong concluding statement that follows from the narrative.
Organization & Transitions	Little to no attempt at organization.	Attempts to organize ideas, but transitional language is needed.	Organizes ideas in a logical way. Transitional language used.	Strong organization and transitional language used throughout.
Mechanics (Spelling & Grammar)	Distracting mechanical errors throughout.	Mechanical errors distract from the narrative at times.	A couple errors present, but they do not distract.	Mechanics reflect careful editing.

Web projects (page 2:) below is our list of mathematical projects K-12. globe (global learning and observations for the benefit of the environment) is a practical, primary and secondary science and education program worldwide. students oate the scientific method to create hypotheses, analyze data, draw conclusions and report their results through the internet. take scientifically valid measurements in the fields of atmosphere, hydrology, soils and soil cover/phenology - depending on local curricula. globe forms teachers to help students improve their achievement in science and mathematics and computer and network technology. hot: the math teacher thomas petra has a fantastic site, RealWorldmath.org, which integrates google earth and sketchup in the mathematical curriculum. in this site you will find lesson ideas, examples and downloads for mathematics that embrace active learning and constructivism. you will find downloads of lessons on concepts, measurement, project-based learning, exploration lessons and space lessons. the attention is for grades 4 and beyond, but teachers of younger students could be able to find some or inspiration from the site .. are encouraged higher level thinking skills, such as analysis, synthesis and creativity, as well as technological skills and social learning. the core of this site is mathematics, but many lessons are also suitable for interdisciplinary activities. There are video and video tutorials of google earth, xtranormal tutorials and html layout tutorials. a special section for teachers includes a blog. The global schoolnet project log includes over 2,500 annotated lists of global projects led by teachers. is searchable by date, age level, geographical position, type of collaboration, technological toolsor keywords. ... Hot: TheFutureSchannel.com contains videos that connect mathematics and applications and careers of the real world. For example, the il on teaching and learning contains algebra in the real world (on topics covered in a typical algebra course), math hands (from wires), problem solving (for strategies) and more. Each video is accompanied by a lesson that deepens the content of the video. Best of all, videos and classroom activities are free. GO Fish Get a collection of numbers to add to 10 and then add them together can make the addition much easier. To begin with, you can only take two cards from the bottom row of the pyramid, but that line has more cards, so there is more chance to find the cards you are looking for. Carter with Sara Cohen, Marian Keyes, Patricia S. Defined Learning is a subscription service that provides authentic performance activities and essay literacy tasks for grades K-12 in mathematics, science, ELA and social studies. Students with a real-world situation in an STEM career. Particular attention is paid to the creative resolution of problems and the resolution of creative problems and active students and that students showed their mastery with creative expression. Reduce search also by area resume. Join an existing project or announce one of your own. The database has several hundred projects aimed at mathematics. Projects on the Web If you want to be involved in project-based learning, it might be easier to start by participating in one or adapting one to your setting designed by others. Performance tasks follow the understanding of the design framework. Students complete the task using the G.R.A.S.P model in which the teacher presents the goal or the great idea, so students are assigned their role and tell who is the public and the situation they need to solve. They eventually create a product (e.g. Brochure,model) that solves the problem. there are also built student-oriented answers in K-6. a real world video sets the stage for each lesson. Here are some online games that can help kids learn math and have fun at the same time.Free Online Games Math games found online use basic graphics so children can play in the browser but the point of these games isn¢ÂÂÂt to grab your attention. This game uses a 52 card deck which is split evenly between both players. The object of the game is to find pairs of cards that make 10. You¢ÂÂÂll need four of each number for a total of 44 cards. Kusimo, and Crystal Lunsford (2002), contains two chapters devoted to "Projects That Help Middle-School-Age Youth Discover the Science and Mathematics in Everyday Life."Ã Â The Mathematics of Quilting exposes learners to plane geometry, symmetry, and tessellations.Ã Â In Making Art through Mathematics, learners explore Cartesian coordinates, 2-D and 3-D geometry, measurement, symmetry, and volume.Ã Â This is a pdf document. to assist educators in teaching young people core areas of study by introducing them to the world of building and construction" (Overview section).Ã Â Each grade level group relates building and construction to various STEM fields of study and then provides practical math projects/activities suitable for the grade level. Science Buddies has numerous project ideas categorized within different areas of science.Ã Â Among those are over 100 math projects of varying levels of difficulty. Most are formal and can make the child feel like they¢ÂÂÂre back at school which is why these math games always present themselves as games first and math second. The activities are self-differentiating. Pyramid Pyramid is another game that helps kids to count up to 10. If you¢ÂÂÂre asked to add 13 to 28 for example, you should add 10 to 20 and then add three to eight and you¢ÂÂÂll make the addition easier to carry out. Math projects don't have to be big.Connect them to real-life events. You play with a collection of cards that are numbers from zero to 10. game like Go Fish teaches this lesson to kids. Making learning part of a game gets the child to try harder than they would if it was part of a test and they¢ÂÂÂll learn quicker too. They take the loser¢ÂÂÂs cards into their pack. MORE FROM LIFE123.COM Project-based learning is a terrific way to link your curriculum with real world events and applications of concepts that your students are learning.Ã Â There are two pages in this section to help you and your learners: Project Based Learning (Page 1): An essay about project based learning, which includes key questions and the methodology, how to design your own curriculum-based multimedia projects and WebQuests, and how to assess projects, including those involving multimedia.Ã Â Additional resources are included to help learners understand the beauty of math in nature. Addition War pits two or more players against one another. The object of the game is to remove all the cards but the game can also be over when the remaining cards can¢ÂÂÂt be matched to make 10. Math Explorers' Club from Cornell University is a National Science Foundation "supported project that develops materials and activites to give middle school and high school students an experience of more advanced topics in mathematics. TED Talk: House of the Future The Art of Triangles How Random is My Life? Deep Math Projects by Jerry Burkhart at 5280math.com "are open-ended projects that you can extend by continuing to ask new questions. You can customize the fish¢ÂÂÂs color and fins which helps children to become involved in the game, and if you download of iOS or Android, the game can be played wherever you are. After each throw of the dice, any dice that rolls a five is removed from the player who also has to sum the total of the other dice added together. PBLWorks: Projects from the Buck Institute for Education includes a database of projects in multiple subjects, including for math.Ã Â You can search by area, grade level, standards including the Common Core.Ã Â PBLWorks additional resources include articles, blogs, videos, planning tools, rubrics, and student handouts. See CT4ME Technology Integration: Multimedia in Projects David Warlick of Landmarks for Schools (reminds teachers and students to seek permission when using information from web sites designed by others.Ã Â He has provided simple to use Permission Templates for this purpose, which will automatically go to the author or web master of the site you wish to use in instruction or for a school project.Ã Â Use his Citation Machine to automatically create references in APA, MLA, Turabian, or Chicago format.Ã Â Students then can cut and paste those references into their projects. They¢ÂÂÂre designed to train the brain and challenge math skills, and more importantly they take the tedium out of doing endless drills taught at school that tend to make children count up in sets of numbers (20 plus 20 plus 20 for example). You¢ÂÂÂll find online versions that outline all the rules but basically, the game is won when all the cards are paired. Many of the acclaimed CIESE projects use real-time data from scientific and government databases; engage students in global collaboration using pooled data from shared databases; involve student publishing on the Web; and provide access to unique and primary source information" (CIESE description section).Ã Â K-12 grade levels are included.Ã Â Math projects address number and operations, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, and data analysis. The overall winner is the player who captures all of the cards. Take Five Dice for example. Back to top Seek Permission. Share Classroom Projects with an Authentic Audience. The problems often have multiple solutions and/or solution paths. Each player takes their turn until no player has any dice left, at which point the player with the highest total is the winner. It also uses a regular deck of cards which are set out in a pyramid shape. Also see Curriki Project Based Algebra.Ã Â Modules are based on Common Core Standards and each unit ends with a project-based activity. The winner of each turn is the one with the highest number. Kids will only become involved with math if there¢ÂÂÂs a fun way to learn and practice math concepts. REALLY HOT: Bridges Inspire your students to be creative in a project connecting art to mathematics.Ã Â Visit the Bridges Galleries where you will find numerous mathematical art exhibits, photos, and a virtual museum with creations (e.g., paintings, drawings, sculptures, spherical art, origami, prints, textiles) by mathematicians and artists who are mathematically inclined. Students may enter and exit them at points that suit their level of understanding. There's also one showing how a parabola and its equation relates to basketball. You¢ÂÂÂll also need four cards with ¢ÂÂÂWild¢ÂÂÂ written on them. Hungry Fish Rather than doing extra math homework, get your child to play a game on your phone, tablet or PC like Hungry Fish. Addition War Games like Addition War and Subtraction War teach children ways to add in a far more intuitive way than normal drills that ask kids to add in a cluster of numbers. Teams of one or more students, along with a teacher or parent in a coordinator role, can invent card games, board games, apps, outdoor games or anything else that addresses a mathematical topic ranging from counting to irrational numbers to measurement to modeling."Ã Â The challenge begins in February with entries due in July--see the site for exact dates.Ã Â Prizes are awarded.
